

Stor E Telling
Karen Chace © 2003
Storytelling Magazine November/October 2003

ABE Books

Searching for that illusive piece of literature? Over 10,000 book dealers worldwide list books for sale at ABE. Search by title, author or keyword. Their BookSleuth will even track down a book if you can't remember the title or author.

<http://www.abebooks.com/>

Applit

I shared this website before but since this issues theme is humor, like a good joke, it bears repeating. Jack Tales, poetry, authors, study guides and lesson plans, bibliographies and an index categorized by genre. The entire site is focused on Appalachian Literature.

<http://www.ferrum.edu/applit/>

4 2 eXplore ~ Topic: Oral History

A wealth of web links on how to conduct interviews, projects with links to curriculum guides and projects dealing with Oral History.

<http://www.42explore.com/oralhst.htm>

Legends of Maui

Fifteen legends and background information from the book published in 1910.

<http://www.sacred-texts.com/pac/maui/index.htm>

Events Link.com

A web community focused on the Northeast region, designed to help planners of school enrichment programs find performers.

<http://www.eventslink.info/index.php>

No-Strings Attached

In 1993 this all volunteer group based in England began using puppets in church as part of a fun weekend. They offer directions to construct a simple sock puppet, tips on how to manipulate puppets and directions on making your own puppet stage and scenery.

<http://www.no-strings-attached.org.uk/>

Puppet Tools

If you are interested in the art of puppetry this is the place to be. The site features an online workshop with 16 self paced segments; resources, services, journals, books, articles and more.

<http://www.puppetools.com/v3/frame.html>

Sisters Choice ~ Active Heroines in Folktales

An index of books with annotations on strong women in folktales; a perfect place to start if you are developing a program around this theme.

<http://www.sisterschoice.com/heroines.html>

StoryCorps.net ~ Telling American Tales

A national oral-history project funded by a $50,000.00 grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. StoryCorps is seeking questions, suggestions and facilitators. You could be part of this exciting new project and then wouldn't YOU have story to tell! www.StoryCorps.net

Copyright Management Center

Lots of useful information on copyright, ownership, fair use, etc., from Indiana University.
<http://www.copyright.iupui.edu/>

Weaving Arts and Lore

Articles, stories, myth and lore; a wonderful web of information from around the world.
<http://www.mythinglinks.org/ct~weaving.html>